

WINTER
2022

 COMMUNITIES
AT CROSSROADS

COMMUNITY BEGINS HERE.

A few years ago, I read an article that spoke of the Christian's basic responsibility in their spiritual formation. Specifically, responsibility in the area of obedience. When most people think about obedience, they first want to know what is being asked of them before they determine their level of surrender. Once they know what the ask is, they then decide what their answer is. We do this in nearly every segment of life. Before I commit, I want to know what I'm committing to, so I don't get duped into something that doesn't fit my agenda. We're fiercely jealous of what we give our yeses to.

Unfortunately, this spills into our response to God. "You desire sacrifice, God? Let me know what You're asking me to surrender and then I'll give you my answer." "You want me to follow You? Tell me where journey ends and then I'll see about adjusting my course." We start with an ask, then we give an answer.

But what if we started with the answer and then waited for the ask? What if our answer was first "Yes, Lord. Now what is it You're asking me to do?" This simple shift in our approach to obedience would transform our personal discipleship. We would begin with complete trust and respond with complete surrender.

I can't help but think about how this applies to God's desire for our togetherness. We already know God's desire for us is that we live a life connected in biblical community. So, what if this winter you simply put your yes on the table and then asked God, "What is your desire for me in community?" What might God lead you into if He knew your answer was already "Yes, Lord"?

You can always reach me at

CROSSROADS GROUPS

“Communities at Crossroads is our strategy for developing followers of Christ through transformational teaching, biblical community, and missional living.”

Groups are the primary way we connect people with people at Crossroads. Groups and classes typically meet at least twice a month in various locations around the area. Some groups meet in homes, others at one of our campuses, some are online, while others are hybrid groups that we like to call “phygital.” They are groups that have people meeting both physically and digitally.

We have four types of groups at Crossroads: Theological, Relational, Restorational and Missional. While all of our groups should regularly include community, prayer and some spiritual teaching or conversation, each type of group will lean more heavily toward the category it falls under.

HOW TO SIGN UP

Join a Group by visiting crossroadswired.com/communities (scan code) or by filling out a paper registration form during our Launch Sundays at any campus prior to the start of the semester.

TYPES OF GROUPS AT CROSSROADS

Theological

While all groups engage scripture in some manner, theological groups study the Word of God in a formal way. Each time a theological group meets, the Bible is the foundation to address and answer life's questions. Many of these groups place high emphasis on Christian doctrines, books of the Bible or Bible character studies. While philosophy and psychology serve legitimate purposes, Christians need to return to the very words of God - the Bible - as the ultimate source of answers to life's questions. The Bible then must be foundational to what we believe and practice.

Relational

While still placing an emphasis on the study of scripture, relational groups have a familial focus. Because of this, relational groups often meet over multiple semesters and become friends. More significantly, they experience what it means to be a family. A biblical family is one in which life is shared, the ups and downs and the triumphs and defeats. A healthy relational group will be like a healthy family, where everyone is accepted, loved, held accountable, and supported, no matter the circumstances.

Restorational

Restorational groups provide shepherding and godly counsel for group members. Whether a marriage is struggling, an individual is grieving a loss, a veteran is suffering from PTSD, or someone is fighting an addiction - restorational groups can help create bonds that connect and minister to their members. While drawing from biblical teachings and principles, these groups find their focus in helping those in the group pursue recovery, support and counsel through the storm they're in.

Missional

Missional groups pursue an understanding of God's work in our world and actively join Him in it. Missional opportunities can be found in workplaces, neighborhoods, and communities, locally and globally. The missional group sends people outside of the "living room" and "church" and encourages participants to get involved. These groups foster outward focus, both as a group and individually.

CONNECTED THROUGH WEDNESDAY NIGHT KIDS GROUPS.

It has always been important to my husband and I to raise our children knowing Jesus and His love for each of them. We are lucky to have found an extension of that in community groups on Wednesday nights. Our three kids always look forward to going to their respective classes, but my daughter, Isla, especially looks forward to the theme for each week and the fun activities Ms. Susan and her team have planned. Her favorite was pajama night!

We are grateful to everyone who volunteers their time and energy to create a safe, fun, and loving environment each week for our youth.

We are always amazed and proud of the stories our kids retell and the connections they are able to make.

“I CAN BE MYSELF WITHOUT ANY FEAR OF JUDGEMENT.”

Small groups are a blessing for so many reasons. This is what Lana Andrews, one of our Crossroads students had to say about her experience with small groups last semester:

“Student Ministry at Crossroads has changed my life in a very good way. Going to small group has helped me open up and come out of my shell. Student Ministry feels like one big family to me, and I can be myself without any fear of judgement from my peers. Small group has helped me realize that God made me and he loves me how I am. I feel so much more confident in who I am, and I'm much more grounded in my faith now.

“‘One big family,’ I love that. That's a good way of saying it. Scripture says we are ‘members of the household of God’ (Eph. 2:19). And it's important for us to have those church family relationships where we can come out of our shells and share. Small groups are a great place for exactly that!”

A CONNECTION THAT GOES BEYOND GROUP MEETINGS.

The most rewarding thing for me being a group leader is seeing people come together. We've bonded over shared activities and interests and hung out outside of group.

It brings me so much joy to see us find genuine connection and community through a group.

The connection goes far beyond Wednesday nights. I've seen people meet in the lobby and sit together at church. People have shared scripture they're reading and prayer requests in group chats.

I've also seen our group grow in such a short time. People that started very closed off and quiet have really stepped up to share and encourage others. It has been so exciting and rewarding to see how God has been working through community in our group.

COMMON GROUND IN COMMUNITY.

Small groups helped me to find that feeling of community that I had been missing from a smaller church. Hearing others' testimonies made church feel "real" to me.

We were all from different walks of life and our failures that were shared during small groups helped us find common ground with each other.

That made me think of the verse that says "And we know that for those who love God all things work together for good, for those who are called according to his purpose." The weekly Bible reading held me accountable and helped to build the rhythm of daily Bible reading in my life.

BLESSED BY A STRANGER.

This summer I had an impactful experience while serving at a Community BBQ at an apartment complex in Mansfield. My Rooted group chose this event to serve together. Although I admit I was a bit apprehensive about talking to strangers, I felt a stirring in my heart to step out of my comfort zone and trust God to help me.

I prayed that morning for God to lead me to someone with whom I could connect and share my love for Him and what He has done for me. God answered my prayer by introducing me to a woman named Marva who lived in one of the buildings. We made an instant connection through divine intervention. We shared our testimonies and our love for the Lord. She blessed me as much as I blessed her! Two strangers were able to come together, hold hands, and lift each other up in prayer to honor and glorify God by sharing the gospel to further His kingdom. I will be forever grateful and thankful to God for that special moment.
